4-H'ers Attend Camp

Nancy Jo Kidd, Herbie Pulliam and Fay Dickerson

"Charting Your Course in Resource Conservation" was the theme of the State 4-H Conservation Camp held July 16 - 21 at 4-H Camp Farrar, Virginia Beach, Virginia. One hundred and seventy-eight senior 4-H club members from all over the State of Virginia took part. These junior leaders were selected by their County Agricultural Extension Agents for this week of learning, inspiration, and run. Forestry, wild life, soil conservation, entomology and social science classes were taught by professional workers from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and the State Conservation Commission. These instructors provided training important to an increased appreciation for and understanding of naturnl and human resources.

Leader training is the basic purpose of the cmp. All campers participated in every phase of the week's activities.

Herbie Pulliam a member of the Appomattox Senior 4-H club was chosen by the leaders to be a chief. The qualifications for chief are good leadership abilities Nancy Jo Kidd also was chosen to be a cheerleader for her trib. This was chosen by the campers.
